Papers and Proceedings of the Annual Bank Conference on Development Economics 2015

when Jean Tirole won the 2014 Nobel Prize in Economics he suddenly found himself being stopped in the street by complete strangers and asked to comment on issues of the day no matter how distant from his own areas of research his transformation from academic economist to public intellectual prompted him to reflect further on the role economists and their discipline play in society the result is Economics for the Common Good a passionate manifesto for a world in which economics far from being a dismal science is a positive force for the common good economists are rewarded for writing technical papers in scholarly journals not joining in public debates but Tirole says we urgently need economists to engage with the many challenges facing society helping to identify our key objectives and the tools needed to meet them to show how economics can help us realize the common good Tirole shares his insights on a broad array of questions affecting our everyday lives and the future of our society including global warming unemployment the post 2008 global financial order the euro crisis the digital revolution innovation and the proper balance between the free market and regulation providing a rich account of how economics can benefit everyone Economics for the Common Good sets a new agenda for the role of economics in society provided by publisher

Review of Research 2014 2015 the fifteenth volume of Innovation Policy and the Economy is the first to focus on a single theme high skilled immigration to the United States the first paper is the product of a long term research effort on the impact of immigration to the United States of Russian mathematicians beginning around 1990 as the Soviet Union collapsed the second paper describes how obtaining a degree from a US undergraduate university can open an important pathway for immigrants to participate in the US labor market in IT occupations the third paper considers the changing nature of postdoctoral positions in science departments which are disproportionately held by immigrant researchers the fourth paper considers the role of us firms in high skilled immigration the last paper describes how strong growth in global scientific and technological knowledge production has reduced the share of world scientific activity in the united states increased the immigrant proportion of scientists and engineers at us universities and firms and fostered cross border collaborations for us scientists

Economics for the Common Good 2019-05-14 in china growth will gradually moderate reflecting intensified policy efforts to address financial vulnerabilities and structural constraints and place the economy on a more sustainable growth path in the rest of the region growth will pick up as exports firm in line with strengthening global activity and the impact of domestic adjustment in large asean countries eases significant uncertainties remain about the sustainability of the global recovery and global financial conditions are likely to tighten the short term priority in several countries is to address the vulnerabilities and inefficiencies created by an extended period of loose financial conditions and fiscal stimulus in china the authorities need to strike a balance between containing growing risks from rising leverage and meeting the indicative growth targets over the longer term the focus in most countries must be on structural reforms to enhance export competitiveness the report s special section focuses on education skills development international migration and the policy priorities for the pacific island countries
